Membership Renewal Time

A new year means it is time to renew your NOU membership, if you have not done so already. Thanks to those individuals who have already renewed, as well as to those who have joined for the first time. If you are currently not a member, it is a good time to think about starting the year out right by joining the organization. Memberships can now be purchased online by visiting this page. If you are unable to do it online, you may still join the NOU or renew your membership by sending a check (payable to NOU) of $25 (regular membership), $40 (sustaining membership, which includes a $15 donation), or $10 (student membership) to Jan Johnson, NOU Treasurer, 86252 581 Ave., Wakefield, NE 68784. A handy membership form can be found in this newsletter.

NOU's Next Scheduled Meetings

Spring Meeting: Valentine, 5-7 May 2023

Fall Meeting: Holdrege, 22-24 Sep 2023 (tentative)

New Members

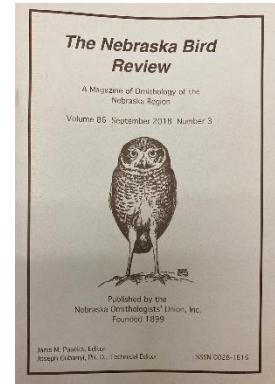

Emily Brhel, Fairfield; Paula Dittrick

Hastings; Kellie Hayden, Omaha;

Greg and Susan Estep, Omaha

Do you need copies of back issues of the Nebraska Bird Reviews?

The NOU will be reducing its inventory of back issues of the Nebraska Bird Review. Before these hard copies are sent to the recycling bin, members are being given the opportunity to acquire back issues that they want or need. Perhaps there is an issue with a certain article or a color issue that includes one or more of your photographs. Whatever the reason, this will be a limited offer in both quantities available and temporal duration. If you have an interest in any issues, please contact Janis Paseka at paseka76@gmail.com by 31 March 2023 so arrangement can be made for transfer. For those interested in issues, one option is to receive issues at the NOU Spring Meeting in Valentine. If you would like issues to be sent via the U.S. Postal Service, there should be the expectation that the requestor will cover shipping costs.

Moving? If you are changing addresses, please update it by logging into the NOU website or by sending a note to Jan Johnson at janbirder@gmail.com. Copies of the Nebraska Bird Review sent to defunct addresses are costing the NOU unnecessary postage. Being proactive will help us save dollars.

Nebraska's Best Birds of 2022

The year 2022 has ended and with its conclusion comes the opportunity to take a look back at the birds that defined the year. Below, the top birds of 2022 are ranked, in reverse order, with the bird of the year coming at the end. Note that most of these sightings are subject to review by the Nebraska Ornithologists' Union Records Committee, but I purposely only included sightings that appear likely to pass scrutiny because they were photographed. The selection and their rank are solely the opinion of the Editor, so please send criticism, corrections or omissions to him. It ended up being a rather solid year on the rarity front. In addition to the species listed below, some honorable mentions that just missed the list include Little Gull in Scotts Bluff County, Townsend's Warblers in Douglas County in spring, and a Blue-winged Warbler in Scotts Bluff County in Fall. Without further ado, here is the rundown.

10. Painted Bunting: After a Painted Bunting was included in this countdown last year, I remarked how bizarre it is for a species that breeds as close as 50 miles from the Nebraska border to be such a rare occurrence. This year, a single male made an appearance in Bridgeport where it was photographed by Ed and Chery Harms, who passed along their sighting to Kathy DeLara.
9. Common Raven: This species' infiltration into Nebraska in 2021 was the top story last year. A reminder to the studio audience, there were few credible reports of this species in Nebraska prior to 2021, but none were documented with photographs or audio. Furthermore, Common Raven reports that were obviously in error were a regular occurrence. Thus, without documented records this species' status in the state

Dinsdale and then on 21 November by Steve Brenner. Photo by Steve Brenner.

8. King Rail: This species has always been rare in Nebraska, and it has only become more scarce as populations struggle in the Midwest. There has been only a handful of solid reports over the last couple decades, but one individual was found at a wetland at Frank Shoemaker Marsh by Linda Sullivan and Steve Kruse on 20 July 2022. This King Rail, along with several Virginia Rails, were very cooperative and were observed sporadically at close range at the wetland through the end of the month.
7. Gray Flycatcher: A challenge to identify, Nebraska only had about ten documented records prior to 2022. Two sightings were well-documented with photos in 2022. The first is only the second documented spring record and was found Steve Brenner, T.J. Walker and Joel Jorgensen at Oliver Reservoir, Kimball was a mess. Common Raven did not make as much noise in 2022, but the saga continued. Notable was a lone adult found and photographed by Olivia DaRugna and Steve Brenner on 6 June southwest of Scottsbluff, the first documented modern record for Scotts Bluff County. Olivia's luck continued when she photographed another Common Raven in southern Sioux County on 11 October. Two Common Ravens were also photographed east of Harrison, Sioux County, first on 16 October by Thane

County, on 23 May. The second was one found by Steven Mlodinow at Wind Springs Ranch in Sioux County on 25 August. If the Panhandle continues to be well-covered, this species may prove to be a rare but regular migrant. Photo by Steve Brenner.

6. Brown Pelican: Large bodies of water are where one might hope to find a Brown Pelican, which has been documented in the state eight times prior to 2022. Lake Hastings, a relatively small muddy impoundment, is not a spot where this species is expected to make an appearance. Nonetheless, one was reported there via NEbirds, first by Jeff Wallace, on 24 October. It was seen by others through the 26th of October. Even though Lake Hastings is a bit underwhelming, it is also the site where Nebraska's last Brant occurred in 2013. Photo by Mary Clausen.
5. Anna's Hummingbird: Given how quickly its status appears to be changing, it is a little difficult to believe the first state record of this species occurred as recently as 2016. Two different Anna's Hummingbirds made appearances at feeders this fall, both in Scotts Bluff County. The first showed up at the famous Smith feeder 17 October and remained until 28 October. The second, an obvious different bird based on plumage, was present at the equally famous Croft feeder 30 October through 8 November. These two occurrences will represent the 7th and 8th Nebraska records.
4. Golden-crowned Sparrow: The most recent record prior to 2022 involved a long-staying individual in Knox County present in 2017 that was seen by many. Overall, though, Nebraska claims very few records. The state's 7th occurred on 15 February when Joel Jorgensen and Steve Brenner discovered and photographed a single bird with a mixed-species group of sparrows near Keystone, Keith County. The bird was relocated by others and seen through 27 February. Photo by Joel Jorgensen
3. White Ibises: This southern wader is expected to wander north occasionally, but Nebraska's last documented record prior to this year was in 2001. The state's 5th documented occurrence happened when Joel Jorgensen found an immature White Ibis at Kirkpatrick Basin North Wildlife Management Area on 3 August. This cooperative bird was subsequently seen by many and remained at the wetland through 17 August. That was not the final word regarding this species in 2022. Another immature White Ibis was present at a gated private housing development in western Sarpy County beginning on 14 August. Fortunately, local homeowners noted the bird was unusual and reached out to Mary Clausen, who relocated and photographed the bird on 23 August. Finally, a third immature White Ibis was reported in Jefferson County 19 August. It is at least possible this bird could have been the same one present at Kirkpatrick Basin North WMA, but it will never be known for sure. There easily could have been three White Ibis wandering around Nebraska this past summer. Will we be waiting for another 20 years for another to show up in the state? Photo of a White Ibis with two Snowy Egrets by Joel Jorgensen.

2. Black Vulture: Rare birds can show up anywhere. Merganser Recreation Area (RA) in southwest Lancaster County is a public area that traditionally has not received much birding attention but popping into areas like this one can sometimes pay big dividends. Both Steve Kruse and Tom White independently discovered and photographed Nebraska's 3rd Black Vulture on the ground at Merganser RA on the morning of 26 April. Photo by Tom White.

1. Limpkin: The occurrence of a Limpkin in Nebraska was unthinkable just a few years ago, but the rapidly evolving Limpkin situation along the Gulf Coast and eastern U.S. underscores how quickly bird populations can change in response to environmental change. Limpkins have expanded along the Gulf Coast as far west as Texas, apparently aided by invasive giant apple snails, now a favored food resource. In addition, a flurry of sightings has occurred in the South and Midwest in just the last couple years and things got downright silly in 2022. Nebraska claimed its first record when Karen Kader discovered a Limpkin at the Wehrspann Lake Mitigation Pond in Sarpy County. Many birders hurried to the site and successfully chased this bird, but there was no need to rush as the Limpkin continued in the immediate area until the end of October. Apparently, it was doing quite well feasting on another invasive species, Chinese mystery snails. With the bird lingering so late, one question that emerged was whether these wandering Limpkins would have the wherewithal to migrate back south as temperatures dropped. One that remained in Iowa in December was later recovered after it expired, so maybe the answer is, no? While 2022 was the year of the Limpkin, recent events would suggest we may be hearing more from this species in Nebraska in the coming years. Photo by Mary Clausen.

Bring on the good birds of 2023!

Remembering Clem Klaphake

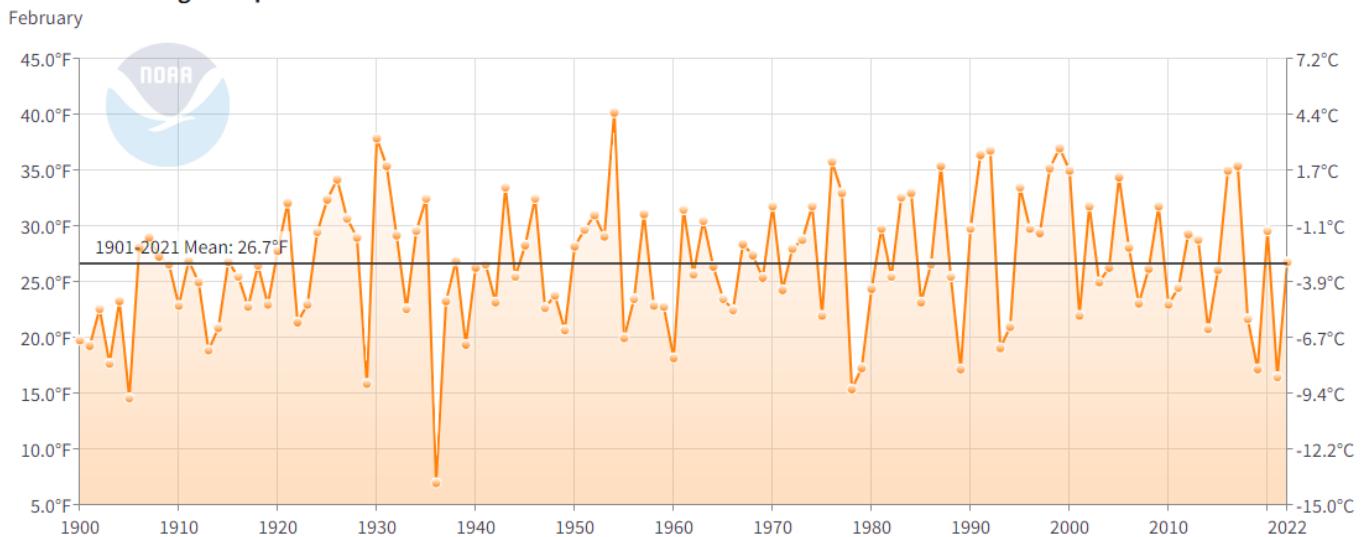

We learned that Clement N. Klaphake, whom we all knew as "Clem", passed away on 30 December 2022 at the age of 79. Clem was born in Melrose, Minnesota. He served in the U.S. Army, but much of his life was dedicated to education. He was a professor of sociology, anthropology, and environmental science at Bellevue University from 1971 to 2010. Clem was a longtime member of the NOU, served as President from 1999-2000 and was a regular at spring and fall meetings. He was also actively involved in the Audubon Society of Omaha, Fontanelle Forest Association, and the Hitchcock Nature Center in Iowa where he regularly assisted with the annual fall hawk watch. Clem was also very generous with his time in retirement, assisting with the Master Naturalist program as well as participating annually in several Christmas Bird Counts across the state and birding events hosted by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Are recent harsh Februarys affecting our overwintering birds?

Reported low numbers of semi-hardy species such as Eastern Bluebirds, Yellow-rumped Warblers, Carolina Wrens and Yellow-bellied Sapsuckers during the recent Christmas Bird Count season raises questions about why. The year 2022 was dry and conditions may have affected eastern red cedar berry production, a food resource many species rely on during winter. However, we have also experienced a couple of brutal Februarys during the last five years. Four years ago in 2019 was the year of near record snow in the east and it was also the 6th coldest February on record since 2019. Two years later, 2021 was memorable as we experienced a major Arctic blast and overall the 5th coldest February on record since 1900. In contrast, temperatures during most Decembers (excluding 2022) and all Januaries over the past decade have averaged above normal. So, is it possible wintry and cold Februarys over the past four years has played some role? Below is a graphic showing average February temperatures in Nebraska 1900-2021. This also means we need to be concerned about what February 2023 has in store for us!

American Robin

The American Robin is about ten inches long and has a brick-red breast, gray wings, head and back. The short beak is yellow. It has a white throat with black stripes. The males and females look similar but the male's head is darker. They have a broken white eye-ring around their eye.

The American Robin can be found all over North America. They live in farmlands and cities.

They love to eat berries and insects but earthworms are their favorite food. You can often see them on lawns with their heads cocked, searching for insects and worms and if they find a worm, watch them tugging on a worm from the ground.

They like to sing. Their calls are variable and sounds like cheerily cheer-up cheerio. They sing to attract a mate and to mark their territory telling other Robins to stay away.

Both parents build a nest made of twigs, mud, and dried grass. The cup-shaped nests are built almost anywhere: tree limbs, shrubs, and window ledges are a few places. The female lays 2-4 light blue eggs. The female sets on or incubates the eggs for about two weeks. When the eggs hatch both parents feed the young for about another two weeks. The babies are hatched with their eyes closed and they stay that way until the babies are about five days old.

Color the Robin and her eggs.

2022 NEBRASKA BIRDING LIST REPORT

Mark A. Brogie – Compiler

508 Seeley, Creighton, NE 68729; mabrogie@gmail.com; (402) 358-5675

NEBRASKA BIRDERS: Here are some significant changes that I noticed while going over the 2022 numbers! The biggest news: another person going over the 400 mark and the six individuals who went over 300 in the Nebraska Big-Year Lists. Also: NEARLY 90 NEW COUNTY ADDITIONS!

NEBRASKA LIFE-LISTS: (Hitting milestone or adding 5 or more – above 350)

1. Ed Brogie added three species and hit # 400 - NEBRASKA LIFE-LIST! Congratulations!
2. Michael Willison added 5 species (392) to make it into the top-10 in this category.
3. Other big movers (over 350): Mary Clausen added 10 species in 2022 to get to 367. Steven Mlodinow (363) added 7; Larry Einemann (389) added 6; Sam Manning (375) and Ruthie Stearns (364) each added 5 species.
4. Steve Morris (352) and Boni Edwards (351) topped the 350 mark.

2022 ANNUAL LIST - (SIX people went over the 300 species total in 2022).

Adjusting for exotics: here are their eBird totals.

1. David Cunningham had 331 species in 2022.
2. Thane Dinsdale also at 331. Great job by both these men on their 1st attempt at a Big Year!
3. Paul Pearson – 318. A great 1st attempt by a born and raised Nebraskan - residing in Iowa.
4. Steven Mlodinow - 311; his 3rd time going over 300 – Very nice! (And he is from Colorado)!
5. Larry Einemann - 305 (now tied with Mark A. Brogie and Michael Willison for 5th time placing in this category). A bit of time and effort to accomplish this!
6. Sam Manning - 301 - (3nd consecutive time over 300 Annual). Good job!

2022 TOTAL SPECIES/COUNTY

1. Larry Einemann added 1 species in Lancaster (332) to retake 1st place in this category.
2. Boni Edwards (Lincoln), Sam Manning (Sarpy), Shari Schwartz (Lancaster), Linda Sullivan (Lancaster) all went over 250 in a county.

NEBRASKA COUNTY ADDITIONS: (Adding 5 or more).

1. Sam Manning (33) and T.J. Walker (35) each added six to their Counties over 125 list.
2. Stephen Brenner, Kathy DeLara, and Kent Skaggs reached the 10 county minimum to make this list.
3. 62 individuals added one or more counties to their lists.

SPECIES TOTALS FOR ALL 93 NEBRASKA COUNTIES:

1. Big Movers (over 5000) in this category:
Ed M. Brogie added 804 to get to 8,033.
Sam Manning added 592 to get to 8,088.
T.J. Walker added 559 to get to 10,634.

SPECIES IN ALL 93 COUNTIES:

1. William Flack added 3 more species to get to 58 (continuing his lead in this category).

NEBRASKA COUNTY LISTS:

Five county lead changes took place in 2022:

1. Steven Mlodinow added 11 species and took the lead in Kmball County (252).
2. William Flack regained the lead in Arthur County (140).
3. Eric Bents gains the top spot in Burt County (205).
4. Nancy Drilling now leads in Jefferson County (211).
5. Cole Wild now leads in Nance County (180).

ANNUAL PHOTOGRAPHED: (Top 3). - Great Job!

1. Elizabeth Winter photographed 290 species in 2022!
2. Boni Edwards photographed 264 species in 2022!
3. Colleen Childers photographed 252 species in 2022!

The following (over 125) moved up at least 10 species in a county:
